FINE BASKET BALL PLAYING.

Lindsey-Wilson and the Columbia High school Teams Meet the Fast Somerset Quinnet.

(Reported.)

In the fastest and most hotly contested game of basket ball ever played here, the Lindsey-Wilson Training School defeated the Somerset High School, claimants of the State High School championship, Friday night by the score of 32 to 31.

This was the best contest ever seen here, both quintets displaying excellent team work and goal shooting. Lindsey played a more consistent game than the visitors, taking the lead at the first which was never overcome. Somerset played more by spurts. They made a strong bid for victory in the final half, but the local five stopped them just in time to save a victory. Bahan played best for Somerset, while honors were equally divided among the Lindsey team. Although this was one of the hardest fought games ever played on a local floor there was very little roughness and the game progressed very nicely.

Until this defeat Somerset had lost only to Lexington High School. The visitors claimed championship honors by defeating Manual and High School of Louisville and Cynthiana, who defeated Lexington, and by victories over various other clubs of the State.

Somerset H. S. vs. C. H. S.

(Reported.)

Saturday evening, as had been planned, the fast squad of Somerset basket ball boys, met the local high school team in their gym. The Somerset boys outweighed the local team several pounds to the man and were stronger physically. The gym was well-filled with people anxious for the game to start for some time before the whistle blew for beginning the contest. The first half was spirited and hard fought, the local team keeping the ball in their end of the gym most of the time. The first half was almost over before Somerset had secured anything more than one foul. In the last minute or two Somerset got one more foul, and Converse, for Somerset also got a field goal. When time was up for the first half the score stood 8 to 4 in favor of the local team. Diddle and Lewis had each got a field goal and Diddle had pitched four fouls.

The hard playing in the first half with their much heavier and stronger opponents, weakened the C. H. S. boys for the second half. The C. H. S. boys also lacked "wind" in the second half. Soon after the second half started Somerset evened the score and took the lead. The baskets were easier for them and they had excellent team work. In this last division Converse got 6 field goals, Bahan 6, Reid 1 and Gooch 1. Converse also pitched two fouls. For C. H. S., Diddle, Antle, Lewis and Herriford each got 1 field goal, and Diddle pitched 4 fouls. Score of last half 30 to 12. Final score 34 to 20 in favor of Somerset.

Officers 1st half Barger, referee, King, umpire, last half, King, referee, Barger umpire. King was from Transylvania. The officials were impartial and gave satisfaction to both sides.

Sand Lick Distillery Demolished.

Word reached here last Wednesday morning that a distillery, located at Sand Lick, a watering place, where Adair, Cumberland and Russell corner, was blown up by dynamite Monday night. Our informant stated that the boiler and other fixtures were scattered in every direction. One hundred gallons of whiskey were destroyed. The distillery, we are informed, belonged to John and Ed Oldham, and they estimate their loss at $1,500. The owners of the still sent for blood hounds, but we have not learned the result of their trailing. It is not believed that the parties guilty of the act live in the immediate locality. It was a registered distillery and the Government will doubtless make a diligent effort to run down the guilty parties. There is no doubt but the buildings were dynamited, as Mr. John Oldham heard the explosion, his residence being in one-half mile of his distillery. Upon hearing the report, he got up, looked out, to see the buildings in flames.

Cravens-Vancamp.

On Sunday Feb. 14th Mr. Albert Cravens and Miss Emma Vancamp were happily married at the parsonage of the Christian church, of Williams-ville, Ill., the Rev. T. L. Cammins officiating. Mr. Cravens is a farmer of Pleasant Plains Ill. He was born and reared near Russell Springs Ky., and was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Cravens. Miss Vancamp is a daughter of J. W. Vancamp a retired farmer, of Williamsville.

Only a few intimate friends were invited. Those present were Miss Ethel Vancamp of Williamsville, Mr. Walker Cravens, of Buffalo Hart, Mr. and Mrs. George Plummer, of Elkhart. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Chicago, where they will spend a few days. On their return they will reside on a farm near Pleasant Plains, Ill.

An Old Clock.

An eight day "Grandfather's" Clock is now at the Jewelry store of Mr. L. E. Young. It was sold to the highest bidder a few weeks ago at the sale of Mrs. Meeky Montgomery, Mr. Young becoming the purchaser. Every thing about it is hand made but the dial. It is nine feet high, made of cherry, a beautiful piece of furniture. The clock has not been running for more than fifty years, but the works are as good as new. Mr. Young has given it a thorough cleaning and in a short time it will be telling the hours as they come and go.

These old time clocks are becoming quite rare and often sell for a fancy price. From the best information obtainable it was made in Virginia one hundred and ten years ago, and brought to Adair county by one of the first Montgomery settlers.

English Pheasants.

Mr. T. I. Smith, the Game Warden of Adair county, has been notified from headquarters that in about two weeks the Game and Fish Commissioner of this State will secure a shipment of English Ring-Neck Pheasants to be distributed in every county in Kentucky. They are larger than the native birds, and we take it that Mr. Smith will see that Adair county gets her share. They will be shipped in crates, 15 birds to each crate, five males and ten females. Strict precaution will be taken for their protection, and any party killing one or more of them until after expiration of a given time will be vigorously prosecuted.

Marriage Licenses.

The following were issued from the Adair county clerk's office during the month of February:

Jackson T. Bragg to Elizabeth Thompson.
Buford Breeding to Bert Thomas.
Jas. A. Dixon to Omitta Bragg.
Virgil Simpson to Ann Hadley.
Bascom Dohoney to Mary Garrett.
Whitton Greer to Sallie Burton.
Gideon Coffey to Lizzie Moss.
Jo K. Sparks to Lixy Dooley.
J. A. Powell to Lizzie Giles.

"Old Maids' Convention."

The "Old Maids' Conventin," a play given by some of the young ladies of the town, assisted by a few school girls, was a great success. From the time the old maids began to arrive on the platform till the curtain was drawn the house was in a roar of laughter. All the young ladies who took part did exceptionally well. The reports of the various committees on the old bachelors brought forth side splitting laughter, as did many remarks and the acting of those who did not have committee reports. Mr. Leon Lewis, who was Prof. Makesnew in the play, was at his best, and did his part as hardly any one else could. The play was gotten up by Mrs. Wilson and the young ladies for the purpose of getting some nice clocks and other things needed in the rooms of our public school. The amount taken in at the door was $29.25 and expenses were $1.45. Mrs. Wilson and all who took part in the play deserve much credit for the splendid way in which the play was given, and for their ingenuity in getting up the play for the above mentioned purpose.

Mrs. C. G. Jeffries, of this place, met with a very painful accident one day last week. When a Man is Poor.

A man is poor when he has lost the confidence of his friends; when people who are nearest to him do not believe in him; when his character is honey-combed by deceit and punctured by dishonesty. He is poor when he makes money at the expense of his character when he does not stand clear out, supreme in his idea. When this is eluded he is in danger of the worst kind of poverty. To be in the poor house is not necessary to be poor. If you maintained your integrity, if you or your character stands four square to the world, if you have never bent the knee of principle to avarice, you are not poor though you may be compelled to beg bread.—Ex.

A Tribute of Respect.

On Monday, Feb., the 8th, Prof. P. H. Jackman, of color, died at his home in the suburbs of Columbia, surrounded by his loved ones and friends, the cause being heart trouble. He had only been confined to his room a few days and the physician had informed the family that his condition was much improved, but the critical moment came when fond hopes were entertained for recovery.

He was born May the 24th 1845, in Russell county, near Creelsboro. Through his own efforts and under trying circumstances he acquired a good education, and for forty-five years he has taught school, twenty-eight years being spent in this county. A close student he was proficient as a teacher, thorough and earnest in his work, and the good he accomplished in the school room will live on to the betterment of his race. Not only was his effort and teaching confined to the school, but his living and his influence as a gospel minister were earnest and sincere. He professed faith in Christ in the early part of life, united with the Methodist church, but later on became a Baptist and entered its ministry, living a consistent Christian, an earnest, zealous expounder of the faith. He died in the faith without a fear, but with the joy that comes to well-spent living.

He was married to Frances Williams, of Green county, in 1889, and moved to Columbia, becoming the leader and director of the colored teachers of this county. He stood preeminently at the head of the educational movement of his race in this county, and sought to inspire the highest ideals, best efforts and most lasting achievements, being instrumental in moulding the minds of more boys and girls than any other man of his race in Southern Kentucky. and his work will live on. He was a Union soldier and no complaint ever came that he faltered or failed to do his duty in that struggle.

He is survived by a loving wife, two daughters and one brother. His body was laid to rest in the family burying ground, witnessed by a large gathering of sympathizing friends who deeply felt the loss his death brought to their people. No greater tribute can be paid the departed than to say he was true to his responsibilities in life, whether they be public or private, true to his color, and did all within his power to develop and make better his people and surroundings.

His efforts, attainments and the high esteem in which he was held is a rich legacy to the surviving members of the family, and an honor and blessing to the colored of this entire section.

Lula Haggard, Col.

A Remedy No Family Should Do Without

No matter how healthy a human being may be it is safe to say that many months are passed without some obstruction of the bowels, in other words, constipation, even if only temporary. The bloating, the dull feeling, the start after the evening meal, if a laxative is not taken that night it is certain that sleep will not be sound, and you will awaken unrefreshed.

Hence, it is important for you and for all the members of your family that a good, reliable laxative be always kept in the house for just such emergency. It is sure to be needed, and when needed you want it at hand. No family that is careful of its health can do without such a remedy. But the question of which remedy to have on hand is also of vast importance.

The laxative most highly recommended by the majority of intelligent Americans as being best for babies and grownups is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

It is a liquid laxative- tonic, mild, and never gripes, is effective on robust people and can be given with safety to an infant. Children like it because of these gentle qualities and because it is pleasant to the taste.

It is the best all-around remedy you can have in the house for any disorder of the stomach, liver and bowels, and many people like R. H. Morgan, Price, Tenn., and Mrs. H. C. Davidson, Wart- race, Tenn., say they would as soon be without the necessities as without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

"Thy will be done our Savior dear,
For thou dost know what's best;
Help us Thy gracious name to fear,
And find in Thee sweet rest.

Our hearts are crushed beneath the load
Of grief that's come to us;
But still we'll travel Heaven's road
For Thou art good and just.

Our Walter's gone from earth away,
To live with God above,
Where all is one eternal day
To bask in boundless love.

A son, obedient and kind,
A brother true and good,
Whose light for God did ever shine,
As in his way he stood.

We hoped for him a future bright,
In calling men from sin;
Long years to live as in God's sight,
The erring ones to win.

But as he is no more of earth,
But Thou hast called him home
Where his glad soul no man shall thirst
And grief is never known.

We give him up and say good-bye!
We'll meet again some day,
In that sweet land above the sky
With Thee always to stay."

Death of an Excellent Citizen.

Mr. C. R. Williams, who was one of Adair county's best citizens, died at his old home on Green river, Jan., 30, 1915, having been in feeble health for some time. Two weeks before his death he had a slight stroke of Paralysis, confining him to his bed until the end. He was 82 years old the 13 day of last Dec. He was a son of Billie Williams, who died many years ago. He was a quiet unassuming gentleman, a farmer and trader by occupation in his younger days. He was married to Phebe L. Smith, Oct. 14, 1858, who preceded him to the great beyond 10 years ago. "Doc" as he was familiarly called, was an excellent citizen, and we, as a neighbors and kindred deeply feel the loss of a good and an honorable man. He had for some time had his granddaughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Wesley living with him, who so tenderly waited upon him during his illness and death. They have the sympathy of the entire community. The deceased is survived by three children, Mr. Bill Williams and Mrs. W. G. McKinley, both of Columbia, and Mrs. R. W. Allen, of South Haven, Kansas, who arrived just in time for the funeral. He leaves only one half sister, Mrs. W. H. Hudson, of Nashville, Tenn. She also attended the funeral. He was a member of the Baptist church. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Bush at the grave yard. The interment was in the Smith cemetery, near Columbia.

We miss thee, yes we miss thee,
At morning, noon and night.
We miss thee here and everywhere,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in the home,
Which never can be filled.

Summershade.

The farmers in this section are feeling rather blue, as the inclement weather hinders them from business. Just a few plant beds have been sown and it is getting rather late. It seems like most every thing farmers have to sell is so low they can't afford to sell, excepting corn, which brings a good price. Although tobacco has hit the wall most every one are holding their hogs and can't sell at no price.

P. F. Squires lost a valuable mule some time ago. It was found dead in the stable.

Henry Squires is feeding 45 head of hogs.

Bramlett Squires is feeding quite a number of hogs.

Rev. Calvin Christie, of Gradyville, filled his regular appointment at this place, on the last first Sunday, despite the inclement weather,

Bob Rogers, a tenant hand on the farm of Douglas Wilcoxsin, left with his wife for Springfield, Ill., to make it their future home.

Lester Squires, a student of the L. W. T. S., returned to Columbia last Monday, after a visit of several days with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Squires.

Mrs. Flave Hartfield sold nine turkeys to the Durham Poultry house for $18.

Mrs. Leslie Walker left for Springfield, Ill., to visit friends.

Claud Squires left for Louisville last week, where he is engaged in the selling of tobacco.

Rev. Leonard Squires spent last week in Campbellsville.

Mrs. Tilden Wilcoxsin sold 20 turkeys which brought her $40.

Douglas Wilcoxsin and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Shuffett visited Mr. and Mrs. Bramlette Squires last Sunday.

Rev. Montgomery filled his appointment at Frye last Sunday.

Mrs. Allie Pickett and son, Chapman, visited her daughter, Mrs. Allen Dudley, who lives on the farm of Mr. J. R. Tutt, of Milltown.

Mr. Chapman Pickett will make a crop with Mr. Allen Squires, this year.

Finis Rogers left last Monday for Illinois, where he will work this year.

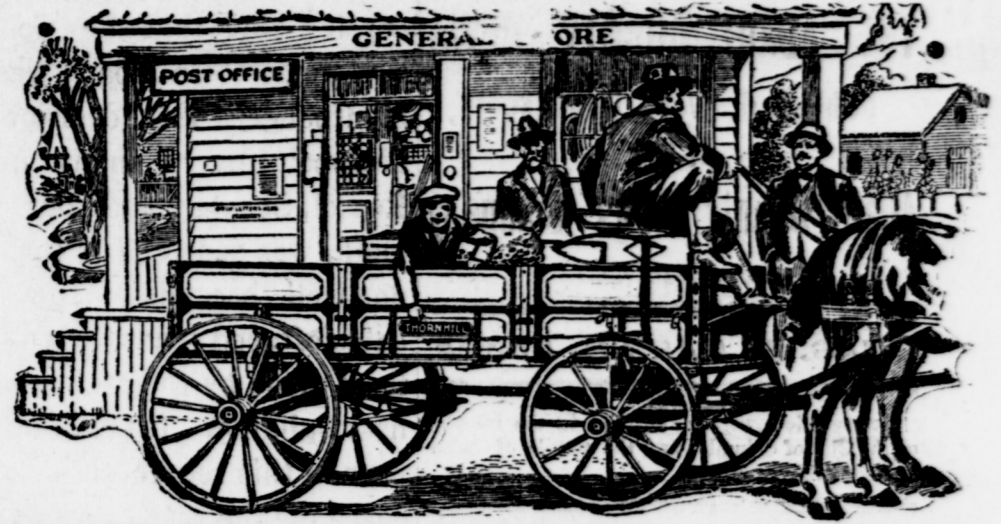

Mr. and Mrs. Lemon Wilcoxsin visited Mr. and Mrs. Cregg Wilcoxsin, last Saturday night.

The roads from this place to Greensburg are in a terrible condition, but the farmers got their tobacco to market just the same.

Miss Flossie Sanders and Mr. Will Squires, were united in marriage on the 12th. They were married in Campbellsville, by Rev. Waggener. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. S. E. Sanders, of Campbellsville, and granddaughter of Mr. John Price, of Glasgow. The groom is a son of Mr. Henry Squires, of this place, and both he and his bride have the best wishes of a host of admiring friends.

This is the "Thornhill" Wagon—the Wagon that Must Make Good

The best known materials—the labor of master workmen—the aid of the most ingenious modern machinery have been employed to make the Thornhill wagon.

The wheels are made with excessive care. For the spokes the manufacturers use the finest hickory—machine driven to insure the right dish. The hubs are of oak, thoroughly seasoned and banded with double refined sable iron.

The bolsters are of the best white oak. They have an iron plate at top and bottom, riveted through and through—multiplying their strength.

The "Thornhill" has a malleable front hound plate that is braced to the hounds at all points. This is an exclusive "Thornhill" feature. It prevents the gears from ever getting out of line and causing hard pulling.

"Thornhill" wagons are equipped with long sleeve malleable—non-breakable—skeins that insure light running, and outlast any other skein. Each skein is fitted to its axle with a Defiance machine—infallibly accurate. This machine insures the right pitch and tuck, makes light draft a certainty.

The axles are of toughest hickory—the steel axles of the best refined steel.

The sides of "Thornhill" beds are made of poplar. It costs the makers more—but it holds paint better and gives better service.

Come in and see this wagon—sold under a binding guarantee.

AFTER THE BALL IS OVER.

The closing of the contest last Saturday, for the building of the first road in this county under State aid, brought to town an unusually large crowd of our most progressive citizens who manifested an interest in the movement that cannot be estimated in the building of good roads in this county. From the opening of court till the contest closed, the court room was fairly well filled and enthusiasm was high. The contest was made by the people on the Edmonton, Burkesville, Jamestown and Liberty roads, the Jamestown winning on a guaranteed bid of $6,151.

The court decided, before accepting bids, that the Columbia and Jamestown road was via Montpelier. This decision was disappointing to many on the Russell Springs road, but, in the main, was accepted in that manner well becoming true advocates of good roads and the game fight made by them to win the first building. It is not our purpose in this report to offer excuses for the roads defeated, for every one made efforts and presented results well becoming every locality interested in the movement, and fully demonstrated the wisdom of the court in presenting the proposition. The combined free will offering on the five roads would total, approximately, $25,000, which shows conclusively that the people of Adair most heartily accept the State Aid road law and endorse the Fiscal Court in its efforts to secure the building of the most road possible.

The winning road will have about ten miles to build to reach the county line and it will have $23,000 to spend on it. The first contest is over and every road that sought the improvement gracefully yields and congratulates the winner, trusting that the money will be sufficient to complete to the county line. Every road made a hard fight to win, and no section was without its prorata part of discouragement and disagreeable features, best known to the workers and likewise every one knows and appreciates those whose hearts beat in unison with the cause, and whose efforts were in keeping with implied faith for road building and not merely for direct benefits at the expense of others.

The contest from start to finish indicated the hearty acceptance of the proposition and an enthusiastic endorsement of the court in opening the door of opportunity. We are proud of the adoption of present plans and would regret any movement that would tend to cripple the good work begun, but there will come a time, we trust, when the people of this county will not only be willing to fight annually for a few miles of good road but will see the wisdom of placing every section on the map of good roads on the same footing, within the same period of time and to be paid for in the most equitable manner yet devised, giving this generation its just share of the blessings at its just share of expense.

Back to the subject, we congratulate the winner and every active worker on all the roads and especially it gives pleasure to state that not a sore spot can be found on Burton Ridge and the entire section interested in the Liberty road against the winner or any competitor and so far as we can hear this same feeling exists on every road—a happy and fortunate conclusion of a very spirited contest. We fought the battle as best we could in the expression heard from all contestants, accept the verdict as loyally as any people and are still in the fight for that which we lost, awaiting only an opportunity. There may have been statements made not germane to the issue, in some instances, but be he who he may that feels offended or disappointed, whether fancied or real, should forget and forgive, stand behind the Court in all of its efforts to advance the interest of this county and adopt the following as a motto:

"Don't view me with a critics eye
But pass my imperfection by."

Estimates Request.

Dear Sir:

Your attention is respectfully called to Section 19, Chapter 80 of the Acts of 1914, which requires this Department to furnish estimates of cost on all road and bridge work costing over $500.

We stand ready and willing to comply with this section of the law, and although the State Aid work will bring in a great deal of extra work for the Department, we do not expect to neglect anything connected with the road and bridge work where we can be of service to the counties.

We respectfully call your attention to this section and urge that if bridge surveys are necessary or if you contemplate building new bridges, that you let us know at once, so that these matters may be taken up and handled as speedily as possible.

When an Engineer is sent to your county to look over the State Aid work it would be an easier matter to have surveys for new bridges and other new roads which will be constructed outside of the State Aid work taken up, at that time. Therefore we would be pleased to have all the applications for this extra work made as rapidly as possible.

Yours truly,

Robert C. Terrell,

Commissioner of Public Roads.

Since his formal declination of the issue as a candidate for Governor in the August primary it is being "narated" around that Attorney General James Garnett is trimming his sails to go after the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eighth district next year. Adair, Gen. Garnett's home county, is now a part of the Eighth district, which is now represented by Congressman Harvey Helm, of Stanford. Gen. Garnett was mentioned for Congress last year but at that time he had the gubernatorial "bug" and gave it scant consideration.—Louisville Times.

The Court of Appeals, Judge Rollin Hurt rendering the decision, affirmed the judgment in the Barren circuit court against Dr. McQueary, who was convicted for carnally knowing a female under 16 years. The judgment is ten years in the penitentiary.

The wind work has been done and actual construction will soon be under way. Keep the ball rolling.

GREAT CROWDS HEAR COOPER.

Our Faulty Method of Living Produces Ill Health, He Says.

Lexington, March 3d.

L. T. Cooper, the man who created such a favorable impression in the big Eastern cities with his health theories and medicine, has attracted immense gatherings in Lexington, where the famous philanthropist has delivered a series of lectures in connection with his introduction of Tanlac, the medicine that is producing such remarkable results in Central Kentucky.

Probably ten or fifteen thousand have heard Cooper talk during the last few weeks. Possessed of an unusual amount of personal magnetism, Cooper seems to draw his crowds from all walks of life, and from everywhere in the Blue Grass section.

During the course of a recent lecture he said:

"Possibly the most prevalent and distressing condition known to we Americans, is chronic catarrh of the mucous membranes. Catarrh of the stomach is the most frequent cause of dyspepsia, and catarrhal conditions in the nose and throat lead to inevitable deafness. Show me a man whose hearing is affected and I will show you a man who is suffering from catarrh."

"Frequently," continued the great student, "the lungs become diseased by the extension of catarrhal inflammation by way of the bronchial tubes to the lung substance."

"The mental and physical state of chronic catarrh sufferers is, indeed, very unfortunate, and it is really surprising to know what an immense number of people are suffering from this almost universal malady when they think something else is wrong with them."

Cooper then enumerated the numerous symptoms of catarrh, such as an offensive breath, constant sniffing, discharges from the nose, droppings in the throat, frequent sneezing, watery eyes, full head, headaches, depression of spirits, nervousness, unsound digestion, lost appetite, and susceptibility to coughs and colds.

Cooper then told how the faulty methods of living produce rheumatism and kidney complaints. How the body, when the organs falter or fail, fills up with poisons generated by one's own system.

He explained how Tanlac, the miraculous medicine, would combat these conditions, as it had done among the thousands of sufferers in the East, as well as many hundreds in Lexington, who had already used the preparation, and found Tanlac an unfailing source of benefit. "Tanlac," he said, "builds up the constitution weakened by disease and mental and physical overwork, quickens convalescence, and is a sound source of comfort to the aged and infirm."

Tanlac is sold in Columbia, by Page & Taylor. Ad.

HEALTH OFFICER'S COLUMN.

BY U. L. TAYLOR.

Within the last hundred years science has wrought a wonderful change in the attitude of the civilized world towards disease, and particularly in that phase of disease known as preventable disease. But, through our own carelessness and unwillingness to conform to the teachings of the men who know we are still bearing an enormous burden resulting directly from contagious disease. What we must do and do at once, if our descendants are to enjoy health and happiness, is to co-operate in a whole-hearted, conscientious way to prevent this future evil, and the only way in which this can be done is by bringing every one to see the possible results to be achieved. People must be ignorant of these facts or they would not do as they do. A single instance will prove the correctness of this statement. Over one hundred years ago, Edward Jenner discovered a vaccine which would render a person who was inoculated, immune from smallpox. Now a careful study made during the past few years has shown that practically every victim of smallpox had not been vaccinated. It is obvious that if every person would be vaccinated, smallpox would soon cease to exist, for it owes its continued healthy existence to the fact that it is transmitted from one person having the disease to another. It would be very simple, would it not, for every one to be vaccinated, and the expense in comparison with the expense caused by the sickness, not to mention the horrible disfigurements which often times follow, would be very slight. There are of course, certain persons who are opposed to vaccination, just as there are persons who are opposed to every good movement. The opposition, however, is conspicuous mainly by its minority.

And again, science has furnished us with a vaccine which will render a person immune to typhoid fever. Large experiments have been conducted in the army with results that are absolutely conclusive of the soundness of the theory. There is not a person of twenty-one perhaps, who reads intelligently that is not aware of these facts. Practically all State boards of health have made arrangements for a free distribution of the vaccines. And yet how many have taken advantage of them? The percentage is so small that I feel ashamed to mention it. In the light of the foregoing facts, there can be only one conclusion drawn. You do not realize that preventable disease can be prevented. By preventable disease, I mean contagious disease, as tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, whooping cough, measles and diphtheria. The figures representing the economic loss from preventable disease in the United States during a single year are almost unbelievable. But when you know that in the city of Chicago alone, the loss during six months amounted to over six millions of dollars, you can calculate what it would be for the whole country. This question confronts us. What is to be done? Scientists who have devoted their lives to research have shown us that there are ways and means of preventing preventable disease. They have even gone so far as to lay down certain rules for us to follow. But the ultimate success of their endeavors is dependent upon our actions. No health officer, however efficient he may be, can secure results alone. He must have not a third or a half, but his entire community standing by him. And every health officer who has given any serious thought to the work knows that this is the case. Taking for granted that you know what is to be done the next thing is to do it, do it yourself and see that your neighbor does it. If your town has not ordinances stringent enough to guarantee good health conditions, see that such ordinances are passed, and what is far more important, see that they are enforced. You will be curtailing no man's liberty. Every person has the right to do according to the dictates of his own conscience, in so far as these dictates do not interfere with the health, wealth and happiness of his neighbor. For instance, if an automobile owner likes to drive fast and take chances that would endanger his own life, no one would object so long as he did the driving where there was no one else, but when he attempts such a course in a crowded street, he not only places himself in danger, but jeopardizes the lives of others also. No one would say that he should be allowed to go on, and so it is with disease. A diphtheria patient

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL.

M. M. LOGAN.

Hon. M. M. Logan has made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General, subject to the August primary.

Mr. Logan can justly be recognized as the logical successor to Attorney General James Garnett from the fact that, as assistant in that office, he has shown himself a tireless and thoroughly efficient worker for the welfare of the Commonwealth. As Assistant Attorney General he also has received training which would make him the most valuable man whom the people could entrust at the head of the State's legal department.

Mr. Logan is well and favorably known throughout the State and professionally, socially and personally he is a favorite in whom it was long ago learned no trust would be misplaced. He is a native of Edmonson county where he acquired the foundation of his education, and as a young man first practiced law as his chosen profession. While as a promising barrister, he exhibited those traits of character and ability which have been characteristic throughout his entire career. Many important cases have been entrusted to his care by the present Attorney General, and in all his dealings he has been fearless in the discharge of his duty and has demonstrated his ability to manage the State's litigation.

Mr. Logan has long been identified with some of the strongest fraternal orders in the State, and at the present time is the Grand Master of the Kentucky Grand Lodge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

He has the hearty indorsement of his chief with whom he has been closely associated during the past three years, and we hope to see the Democrats of this county give him their loyal support in the coming primary.

may not care whether or not, due to carelessness, he may further reduce his chances of recovery, but if that carelessness involves the safety of others, by law he should be restrained. A health department must have funds with which to work. Every county should have a competent, so called "whole time" health officer, who receives an adequate compensation for devoting his entire energies to the work. And the duties of the health department are almost unlimited. This is plain from the fact that so many different factors tend to affect the health of the individual. The condition of school buildings where people congregate, the places in which feed stuffs are sold and manufactured, the water supply, the milk supply, the condition of street and allies, the disposal of garbage, the control of contagion. All these points and many more should come under the direct observation and supervision of the health officer. In making greater efforts towards health conservation, we can not afford to be radical. We must be conservative. This does not imply that we should work slowly, but rather that we should work carefully. Avoid, above all antagonizing the individual you are trying to reform. If your grocer refuses to protect his foodstuffs from flies and dirt, suggest in a quiet way that cleanliness is worth while, and if the hint is not taken, transfer your patronage to the merchant who is careful. Keep your own premises clean before requesting a neighbor to "clean up." Keep the yard and alley free from rubbish at all times. A second clean up day reflects discredit on any community. A town once cleaned should be kept clean. Try it for one year and you will find it well worth the slight effort. But let us begin our good work at once. Let every one inform himself or herself concerning a few of the basic principles on which the science of preventable medicine is based, and then apply his knowledge. It can be done. It should be done. Let every one vow a vow unto himself to see that it is done.

Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet next Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. George Stults.

She Admired Bravery

By F. A. MITCHEL

It was in the late autumn. Edith and I were walking in the woods kicking up the dead leaves, for there were only a few left on the trees. We were both young, I twenty-two, Edith eighteen. I was sweet on Edith, and when a man of that age is sweet on a girl the first idea that enters his head is that she can only love a heroic personage who combines every manly attribute. When a man of forty gets sweet on a woman he fears that she won't consider that he has money enough to make it worth her while to marry him.

While Edith and I were walking along to the pleasant sound of the kicked leaves I was thinking about how many virtues I must possess to win her. It was in wartime, and I naturally supposed that military glory would count for a good deal.

"We're getting quite a number of instances of bravery from this war in Europe," I remarked.

"Yes," she replied, "they're splendid. Just think of a young earl not yet thirty years old, with the life of a nobleman before him, giving his life for his country."

"Would you like to be the widow of such a man?"

"I would grieve for him, but I would glory in having had such a husband."

This was not encouraging for me, a man of peace. It was some time before I tried to find out any more of those traits I did not possess, the absence of which would induce Edith to turn me down.

"I read an account some time ago," I said, "of a Belgian soldier who was placed in front of a company of Germans who were attacking his countrymen. Seeing him, the Belgians lowered their rifles. 'Fire!' he cried. 'For heaven's sake, fire!' A volley swept the Belgian and the Germans away to gether."

"What a noble sacrifice!" exclaimed Edith fervently.

"Do you suppose," I said, "that if you had been that Belgian's wife and a witness of the scene and his countrymen had looked to you to approve his order to fire you could have made the sacrifice yourself?"

This was a poser. Edith made no reply for quite awhile; then she said that she would have preferred to compromise by having them fire on her. I was not disposed to let her out in this way and persisted in having a direct answer, whereupon she said that she was afraid the test would be too much for her. She might be able to make the sacrifice and she might not. Of one thing she was certain. Her heart would be buried with that noble Belgian.

It was apparent to me that to win Edith I must do something heroic.

"Do you know," I said, "I have concluded that this war is a struggle between reaction and progress. I consider it the duty of America to join in on the side of progress."

"So do I," was the prompt reply.

"What is true of a nation is true of one of its individual citizens."

"What do you mean?"

"That it is my duty to fight for the world's progress. I'm going abroad to enlist."

Edith looked grave.

"Don't you think it my duty?"

"No; I don't."

"Why not? Haven't you agreed with me that it is our duty as a nation to fight on the side of progress, and what is the duty of a nation is the duty of its individual citizens?"

"Yes; I suppose so. But I think it would be very foolish for you to go all the way over there to get your self shot."

I looked down sidewise at Edith. The idea of my making myself food for powder evidently troubled her.

"I sail next week."

There was no comment on this for awhile. Presently Edith asked me in a faltering voice why I had said nothing of this before. I was some time framing my answer. When it came I spoke in a choked voice:

"Because I dread a parting."

"With whom?" She kept her eyes bent on the ground.

"You," I faltered.

I went on to tell her that I loved her, and she confessed that my love was returned.

"How hard for us to part," I said, "on the eve of our betrothal!"

"We will not part," she said firmly.

"My duty calls."

"What duty?"

"To progress, civilization, the cause of freedom."

"Let it call."

"I might have an opportunity to die one of those noble deaths we have been talking about."

"You'll do no such thing. You'll stay at home."

"But think how proud you will be of your soldier lover."

"I don't want a soldier lover."

"Must I go unsupported by the knowledge that you are willing to sacrifice?"

"You'll not go at all."

We were sitting on a low horizontal limb of a tree. Edith threw her arms around me to hold me from going to fight for an idea which I had no idea of fighting for. I gave in at last and consented to remain at home.

After we were married one night we heard burglars below. My wife in order to prevent my going down to attack them locked the door and threw the key out from the window.

A Belgian War Romance

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

One quiet evening in the summer of 1913 a pair of young lovers stood on a bridge that crossed the river Lys, in Belgium. They were there for a parting. The young man was to leave for the coast early the next morning and thence for America. Nothing could be more peaceful than the scene about them. A young moon stood in the west. If an occasional breeze stirred the leaves on the trees they were stirred lightly. As for sound, there was only a slight gurgle beneath them as the current passed the abutment of the bridge.

"Mina," said the young man, "cheer up. It will not be long before in America I shall have saved enough money to send for you. That we may have a definite time to be reunited I promise you that one year from today, at not before, you shall receive the passage money to bring you to me."

"And I, Hans, will work and save so that if you do not succeed in gaining enough to send for me I may have enough for the journey."

When the year had passed a great change had come over Belgium. The Germans were pouring into the country from the east, the French from the south. Wilhelmina had received letters from her lover in New York that money would be sent her for her passage, but before it was dispatched the war had stopped the mails.

On the anniversary of their parting, at evening, Wilhelmina went to the bridge on which they had stood a year before. It was now a ruin, more than half of it having been destroyed. Here and there across the fields were flashes, followed by a distant roar of guns, while searchlights sent their columns of light across the sky like the tails of nearby comets.

What should she do? Her home had been that day in the line of fire and was a ruin. Before leaving it she had snatched up her savings, and these she had with her. Standing there in the identical spot where she had stood in quiet with her lover, she resolved to go to him if possible.

There was no way of announcing her coming beforehand. She had neither writing materials nor a way to send a letter. Indeed, it was doubtful if even she could break through the line of war to reach the coast. And if she arrived at a port would she find a vessel? Nevertheless she turned her face toward Holland and set off in the dark night.

Her adventures are a long story by itself. Fortune favoring, she reached Rotterdam in safety and there found that she had the means to buy a steerage ticket on an outgoing steamer to New York.

On the arrival of the vessel the emigrants were landed at Ellis island, and Wilhelmina among others was brought before the emigration commissioners. There she was asked how she would be provided for in America, and when she said that she had no money she was told that she would be sent back to Holland.

Her modesty, the consciousness that she was coming to marry a man with out a special bidding, had caused her to conceal what she expected. Besides, suppose Hans had changed. But the prospect of being sent back to a land running in blood, where even the little home in which she had been born and always lived had been leveled, overcame her reticence, and she told a love story that no pen, however inspired, could put on paper.

"Hans must be found!"

Such were the instructions given to a messenger, who departed on his errand.

There is a committee of Belgians in New York whose purpose it is to look after their incoming fellow countrymen. The head of the committee was found, and he in turn started a hunt for Hans.

Ever since the war had broken out Hans had been anxious about his Wilhelmina. He had not dared to send her his savings for fear they would be lost. Indeed, one of the troubles brought on by the war was the inability to send funds to Europe. He had written her but without expectation that she would receive his letters. As to receiving letters from her, he had no faith in that either.

Hans was at work one afternoon when a fellow workman came to him and told him that the boss wished to see him in the office. Hans told down his tools and reported as directed. He found beside the boss a man, who asked him:

"Are you Hans Wichtel?"

"I am."

"There is a girl on Ellis island who came over from Belgium. She says you will marry her."

"Mina?"

"She says her name is Wilhelmina."

"Marry her! Of course I will marry her. Where can I find her?"

Hans wished to go at once to Ellis island, but suddenly remembering that a man in overalls was not in wedding costume tidied himself up, then set off to join his sweetheart.

If the authorities had any doubt about Wilhelmina's story it was dispelled by the fervent embrace of the lovers. But Uncle Sam's emigrant officials take no man's promise of marriage, and there are no breaches of promise in his large family. A man went with the couple to the city hall in New York, where a license was procured. Then the pair went to the office of the Belgian committee, where the marriage ceremony was performed.

TOO MANY BABIES DIE, SAYS EXPERT

Woman Chief of Children's Bureau Reports Heavy List.

MOTHER'S DATA PREPARED.

More Money Has Now Been Appropriated, and It Is Announced That "the Social Significance of Infant Mortality" Will Be Extensively Studied in the Coming Year.

Two years' work in discovering "democratic standards for the nurture and protection of the nation's children" is described by Miss Julia C. Lathrop, chief of the children's bureau, in her annual report, which was made public recently.

In establishing standards Miss Lathrop sought information in various countries, according to her statement. Dunedin, New Zealand, has an infant death rate of only 38 per 1,000 births.

Comparing this with "the rate in such favorable localities in our own country as Philadelphia (135.5 per 1,000 in 1913) or Boston (109.6 in 1913) it is evident that much serious work remains to be done."

Data on Care of Babies.

In the effort to reduce the number of deaths Miss Lathrop has issued a number of special reports.

One of them gives the best scientific data on the care, the feeding, clothing, bathing and sleep of babies.

Child labor comes up for discussion. "A study is now going forward," says she, "of the methods of issuing employment certificates to children in various states."

This is important, since the work certificate may be used to enforce minimum age provisions and also as a protection against unsuitable work. Another study is under way which has reference to the shifting of jobs of children between fourteen and sixteen years of age.

"The changing of young people from one employer to another and from one job to another undoubtedly has an important bearing upon their later success in industry and in life," states the report.

More Money For Work.

It also makes the assertion that the mothers' pension laws in this country encourage destitution, while those of Denmark and New Zealand "encourage thrift on the part of the mother and imply a certain standard of family living by making the pension on a sliding scale, supplementing up to a certain per capita whatever small property the family has."

The two years' work has been done by a small staff on a small appropriation. A larger appropriation has been granted, and during the coming year field studies of "the social significance of infant mortality" will be made in a number of states and cities.

Johnstown, Pa., already has been studied, and there, says Miss Lathrop, was found "a coincidence of underpaid fathers, overworked and ignorant mothers and those hazards to the life of the offspring which individual parents cannot avoid or control."

code of international law, representing the digested thought and combined wisdom of all the neutrals, would be submitted to the judgment of all nations—neutral as well as belligerent.

OUTSTANDING WAR FEATURES.

Another important victory over the Russians was announced to-day by the German War Office, in the capture of the Polish city of Przasnysz. The heaviest fighting in Northern Poland since the expulsion of the Russians from East Prussia has occurred in the vicinity of this city, and its fall is said to have led to the capture of more than 10,000 Russians. Petrograd has not confirmed the report.

The French and German official communications of to-day indicate that the calm on the western front is unbroken. French attacks in Champagne continue without important results.

A declaration in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Edward Grey constituted perhaps the most important political development since the opening of the war. The Foreign Secretary announced that Great Britain was in sympathy with Russia's hope of obtaining Constantinople as a result of the war with Turkey.

The second week of Germany's submarine campaign opened to-day with the loss of two more British ships. The Deptford and Western Coast, both small steamers, were sunk off the English coast by a mine or a torpedo. Previously ten vessels, seven of them British, had been sent to the bottom.

Germany apparently is preparing to extend the field of these operations, for three submarines have been sent to Pola, presumably for use in the Adriatic and Mediterranean.

The American proposals for cessation of this form of warfare and the admission of foodstuffs to Germany are before the German and British Governments, but there are no indications they will find acceptance.

Germany's claim to an overwhelming victory in East Prussia, resulting in the virtual annihilation of the Russian Tenth Army, is denied categorically by the Russian General Staff. The admission is made that two army corps suffered heavily during the retreat, but the remaining corps are said to have escaped from the German surrounding movement.

Efforts of the Germans to clinch their victory by striking a decisive blow in Northern Poland are leading to continuous battles all along this section of the front, the outcome of which the Russian staff does not attempt to forecast.

Hardly less intense is the campaign in the Carpathians. The Petrograd announcement claims successes for the Russians in small engagements. Dispatches from the front to Swiss newspapers assure that the Russians are winning consistently, and that the Austrians have lost more than 3,000 men at Dukla Pass.

TROOPS NOW ARE HOLDING ALLOTTED POSITIONS.

London, Russian troops have reinvaded Bukowina and reoccupied Sadagora, on the railroad four miles north of Czernowitz, according to a dispatch received by the Evening News from Marmornita, in Rumania. The Austrians, the correspondent adds, are pushing up their troops toward Czernowitz to meet this new Russian attack.

Berlin, (by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.).—The Berlin newspapers continue to print prominently the names of the British steamers which have fallen victim to Germany's submarine activities in British waters since the declaration of the German blockade one week ago. An official report on the sinking by a German submarine of what is described as a British troop transport last Monday near Beachy Head is the only other news in the papers today. There are no reports of importance from either the western or the eastern battle fronts.

The military critic of the Morgen Post says that the Bobr river, which the Russians have crossed in two places in their resumption of the offensive in Northern Poland, is or was quite unfortified, but it offers serious obstacles to an advance by reason of the broad and swampy valley through which it flows.

Reports from the Vosges refer to a further fall of snow. The report from Vienna has in it nothing other than brief mention of developments in the Carpathians and Galicia. The special war correspondents of the Vienna newspapers have sent nothing.

VICTORY EXAGGERATED.

According to official comment the Germans have exaggerated the magnitude of their victories along the East Prussian front, and from the Russian viewpoint the fighting in Northern Poland "is only now beginning." The German claim that they have brought to a brilliant finish their winter campaign is characterized here as premature.

A Russian officer expressed the view that the German claims were made in the hope of offsetting what he termed the loss of sympathy of neutral Powers, particularly the United States, as a result of Germany's submarine campaign in the war zone around the British Isles.

The German detachment which crossed the River Niemen at three points on February 23, has been scattered by Russians cavalry, and part of this force has been captured. Some of the prisoners had in their possession explosives and tools, which indicated that they were intending to blow up the railroad leading from Vilna to Warsaw.

In Galicia the Austro-German forces have occupied a new front extending from the Carpathians to Stanislaw. The characteristic feature of this front is its thinness. The rear of the Austro-German lines touches Rumania. The line of communication is maintained not from the rear but from the flanks, being parallel with the Carpathians.

ALL EXCEPT ONE OF DEPTFORD'S CREW IS RESCUED

London, The small British steamer Western Coast has been sunk by a mine or torpedoed in the English channel at a point off Beachy Head. The crew was landed at Portsmouth to-day.

London, One sailor lost his life when the small British steamer Deptford, 230 feet long and 1,208 tons, was sent to the bottom in twenty minutes either by a German torpedo from a submarine or by coming in contact with a mine in the North Sea at 3 o'clock yesterday morning at a point off Scarborough. The fifteen other members of the steamer's crew were saved and were landed at South Shields at an early hour this morning.

The engineer of the Deptford said he was on duty in the stokehold at the time the explosive in the torpedo head or in the mine rent the Deptford in twain. He says he saw a flash of blue flame shoot up from the bottom of the ship and through her deck. The force of the explosion threw him down violently and stunned him. He managed to reach the deck, however, as the vessel was heeling and just as the lifeboat was being launched. It was the carpenter of the Deptford who lost his life.

After hours in an open and leaking boat in a snowstorm which caused them to suffer acutely, the men say, they signalled a steamer but no notice was taken of their appeal. Later, however, they encountered the steamer Fulgens, which picked them into South Shields. Some members of the crew say they saw the wake of a submarine after the Deptford was struck.
